

WEDNESDAY EVENING, JANUARY 2.

From Washington.

(Special Correspondence of the ALEX. GAZETTE.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 2, 1889.

Both houses of Congress and the U. S. Supreme Court resumed their daily sessions today, with a tolerably full attendance. In the Senate, the reception of the certificates of the election of the Presidential electors in several of the States was announced by the president pro tem. Mr. Daniel introduced a bill to allow the Falls Church and Potomac Railroad Company to construct a railroad through the Allegation reservation; also a bill to allow the same company to construct a railroad bridge across the Potomac from Accotank to Rock Creek. Mr. Daniel also introduced a resolution directing the Secretary of the Treasury to inform the Senate whether the account of Edmund Randolph of Virginia, formerly Attorney General, has been settled and paid in full, and state what is its condition. The Senate then resumed the consideration of the tariff bill. In the House an effort to take up the Nicaragua canal bill was made, but failed. The House then proceeded to call committees for reports, and spent no little time on a pension matter.

Senator Blair, of New Hampshire, the father of the famous Blair educational bill, before he left here for Indianapolis, said he was assured that that bill would be passed by the next Congress, and would become a law.

Several Virginians at the Capitol this morning, in talking about the called meeting of the democratic committee of their State, to be held on the 10th inst., and at which the question of calling an extra session of the legislature of their State will be considered, were rather fervent in the expression of their hope that the question referred to would be decided in the negative, for the reason that monkeying either with the State debt or with the revenue would result in disaster to the party, and that the trouble in Virginia was with the white people and not with the negroes.

The offerings of under 4 per cent bonds at the Treasury today were larger than for many previous days, indicating a want of money in the business circles.

Representative O'Ferrall, of Virginia, was the only Virginian who appeared in the House today to object to the remainder of the session, as that, if possible, some really important business, besides the regular appropriation bills, may be transacted during the remaining two months of this Congress.

It is understood that an effort will be made in the House at an early day to present any bill for the remainder of the session, as that, if possible, some really important business, besides the regular appropriation bills, may be transacted during the remaining two months of this Congress.

It is reported here today that Representative Wilson, of Ohio, a democrat, and Mr. Frank Hamilton, a republican, have bought a controlling interest in the Post of this city for $75,000, and that they will take control of that paper next Saturday; also that Mr. Hamilton, a successful newspaper man of the West, will soon start a straight-up evening republican newspaper here, and that the government's expense account for the late Presidential election amounts to $2,050,000, for deputy marshals, supervisors, &c.

VIRGINIA NEWS.

J. L. Dawson, of Lynchburg, committed suicide at Roanoke on Monday night by taking four ounces of laudanum.

Major Frank P. Turner, a deputy in the office of the clerk of the Chancery Court of Richmond, died last night.

Mrs. Spence, formerly well known as the gatekeeper at the toll house on the Martinsburg pike, near Winchester, died at her home in Berkeley county on Christmas day at an advanced age.

Roe had and similar delicacies are being received in Richmond from Pamunkey river. No bing for the kind at this time of the year was ever heard of before. North Carolina fishermen are catching shad for the Northern markets in Albemarle sound.

Wm. Musco, the negro who shot and killed Police Officer Seal in Charlottesville Monday night, was caught at Barboursville, on the Virginia Midland road, yesterday. He was lodged in jail at Charlottesville, but was afterwards taken to Richmond, as lynching was feared.

Justice John D. Wimerbraugh, of Onancock, who carried the stomach and liver of the late William Taylor to Richmond last week to be analyzed, has returned, bringing the stomach and liver back with him, as State Chemist Taylor declined to perform the analysis unless the county supervisors would guarantee him a fee of two hundred dollars.

Chairman Barbour has called the members of the State democratic central and executive committees to meet at the Exchange Hotel, Richmond, Thursday, January 10, at 8 o'clock p. m., for general conference as to public and party interests. The meeting, it is generally believed, is for the purpose of considering the necessity of a special session of the General Assembly. It is said Gov. Lee does not favor the proposition.

The Lynchburg Virginian says: "Here is the way, we are told, that Mahone will fix three of the offices to be given out under Harrison's administration: Yost is to be supported for public printer to make room for W. E. Craig, a Mahone republican, who will go back into his old place—district collector of internal revenue, now held by Capt. H. M. Sheppard at Lynchburg; and McCaul, the defeated republican Congressman in the Lynchburg (6th district) is to have a situation in one of the departments at Washington."

Miss Amelia Lavelle, the young woman who shot herself Sunday at her father's home in Roanoke, is resting comfortably. The Lavelles came from Augusta county, and it is rumored there was a trace of African blood in the veins of three of the children. It is said the school children first began to taunt younger members of the family with this trait, and later on older people took it up. Mrs. Lavelle was the first to destroy herself, having sent a bullet through his skull, after shooting Charles Reynolds in the head. On Sunday Amelia, a hand some girl of good character, tried to fire a bullet into her heart because a young lady threw the supposed tint in her face. There is a younger sister, who will, it is believed, destroy herself sooner or later. The family was formerly wealthy.

Mrs. Cleveland's costume.—At the President's reception yesterday Mrs. Cleveland wore a French gown of light gray poplin and pink faille. The bodice and side panels were of gray, all richly embroidered in silver thread and beads. The sweeping train was of pink faille and was bordered down the sides and around the edges with a wide band of black arabesque feathers. The waist had a jacket front of the gray poplin, richly embroidered in silver, and a full veil of pink embroidered in silver, which was caught just below the waist line by the skirt panels of the silver embroidered poplin. These panels opened in front, showed a pet taevel in the beaded tulle. The neck, only slightly low, was bordered with the arabesque feathers. Her slippers were gray satin, with silver embroideries, and her gloves, which nearly reached the shoulder, matched the gray in her dress. Her only jewels were a string of diamonds around her throat and two diamond roses in her hair, which were worn brushed back from her forehead. She carried a pretty fan with mother of pearl sticks.

THE ECLIPSE.—The conditions were generally favorable yesterday both in California and Nevada, for a clear observation of the total eclipse of the sun. In San Francisco the eclipse was only partial, about eleven-twelfths of the sun's surface being obscured. The weather was perfectly clear. During the period of the greatest obscuration it became quite dark and one star was plainly seen. No scientific observations were made in this city. Half of the totality in California was from fifty to one hundred miles north of San Francisco. Observers stationed at Nelson, Cal., give the following account of the eclipse: As far as affording opportunity to search for intramercular planets, it was a failure from clouds and haze. All four contacts were well made, chronometer watch previously set to Lick Observatory time being used. Five very small colorless protuberances were seen, all having pointed apices. Near the point of one was another, detached from the sun. Bailey's heads were seen at the second and third contacts, but entirely unlike those seen at Denver in 1878. No chromosphere was visible, though looked for. Mercury, Venus, Vega and Alpha Cigni were seen. The corona could not be drawn, but as seen through the telescopes, was not very extensive.

Letter from Fauguier.

(Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.)

MARSHALL, Dec. 29.—The patrons of the GAZETTE in our midst unite in holiday and the approaching New Year greetings to the editors. The family of the writer, now representing the great grandchildren, have for years past welcomed the tri weekly issue, and though the editor of Local Brevities did begin Christmas to the tune of "Twas the Night before—" the inevitable wind up may not have been "We went home 'till morning."

Here the oldest inhabitant cannot recall a more delightful state of weather at this season. The young folks have missed their wonted sleigh rides, but the small boy has had ice sufficient to slide and skate upon. Nor did the rabbit escape his capture.

On Wednesday we witnessed a most exciting chase, for which Fauguier gentry, since the days of old Mr. Tom Rector, have been so distinguished. Our vista at the base of the Rappahannock mountain revealed a pack of hounds, twenty five or thirty in number, in full chase of Reynard—as usual, making rapid tracks towards Free State and Cobble mountain. Sporting of this kind may be seen here in perfection. Among the old set of fox hunters survive good old Dan Harrison, a true veteran of the late war, as Dan received a bullet in the substance of the brain when behind a breast work in the Shenandoah valley, and survives to tell all about it.

In the line of good news, may be added that Marshall and vicinity have now no fever or sickness.

Dr. Frost expects to visit his relatives in Charleston, S. C., after twenty years' absence. His son, Mr. Henry Frost, is still a medical student in Baltimore.

As usual, religious services were held on Christmas day at the Episcopal Church; the attendance was large, irrespective of denominational differences. Social gatherings have been mainly of the quiet order. The "Christmas Tree" anniversary at the Methodist Church was quite enjoyable to all present. A lot of "kiddie" of the little Jack Horner clan are spending their holiday in Philadelphia. Among the Christmas presents, worthy of mention to the young folks of this neighborhood is a lot of Indian moccasins sent them by Mr. R. Horner Wyeth, whose correspondence from Montana Territory was noticed during the last summer in the columns of the GAZETTE.

Among the notables who have of late visited our midst is Miss Madge Coville, an artist of true merit. She excels in water colors and puts on canvas the most life like pictures of animals and country scenes. A visit from Rev. Horace Edwin Hayden, A. M., was also truly enjoyable. Mr. Hayden has now ready for the press "Virginia Genealogies," including the Glassell family and others, which will doubtless prove valuable and interesting to the average Virginian and antiquarians.

The new judges of the Hastings and Chancery Courts of Richmond, Hon. Samuel B. Witt and Hon. H. H. Fitzgibbon, went out yesterday.

Senator Teller, who visited President-elect Harrison during the recess of Congress, has returned to Washington. He says that he does not believe any body knows anything about the Cabinet. Senator Hiseock left Washington to-day to visit General Harrison.
